

Yesterday afternoon we walked down to Adams' spring and was surprised to find that Mr. M. L. Adams, among his many accomplishments, numbered boat building. He has a summer place on the coast, and has built a launch and a sail boat for use this summer. They are both beauties, and show a little skill in the workmanship of the owner. As soon as the machinery arrives for the launch, they will be taken to Hampton Springs and from there floated to the coast. Mr. Adams says he is tempted to take them down the creek and thus make the trip from Perry direct to the coast by water, but it would entail a considerable amount of work in cutting out logs which have fallen across the creek. — Harry Howell.
